Time is Running Out Congress Needs to Act Now!

Important: Tell Congress That Pension Relief Can't Wait

Thanks to everyone who has been making calls to their Members of Congress in our effort to save your Central States pension. As Congress negotiates end-of-year legislation, these calls make a real difference and keep the issue of pension security on the table.

This week is critically important. We need everyone to step up the effort.

In addition to your own Members of Congress, it's also vital that Congressional leaders of both political parties understand how many workers and retirees across the country urgently need a solution to the multiemployer pension crisis—and, just as important, that we need it before the end of the year.

Senator Chuck Grassley has been a strong advocate for multiemployer pension relief. Please call his office and tell them that you appreciate the leadership he's shown and emphasize how critical it is that common sense legislation to address the multiemployer pension crisis is passed before the year ends.

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell also needs to hear from you!

Call now! Congress may finalize end-of-year legislation in the next few days. As always, please encourage your family, friends and co-workers to join you.

What to Say When You Email or Call

Your calls make a difference!

- Tell them your story: where you worked and for how long, where you live, how you survive on your pension.
- Tell them to pass relief for multiemployer pensions and the essential workers covered by these plans before the end of the year.
- If you served your country ... thank you. Remind them that you served.
- Remind them that their decision on this issue will affect how you vote in future elections.

Don't give up if you get a busy signal or voicemail. Keep trying...Congress will listen!
